

LISTENING

Hong Yu Kei
23220002

- 2/10

Listening (10 marks)

Situation:

During your research on MBTI in job hunting, you came across a podcast on whether job seekers should include their MBTI on their résumé. Listen to the recording and answer the following questions.

You will hear TWO excerpts from the podcast. Each recording will be played ONCE only.

Multiple-choice Questions (4 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and answer the following questions:

1. According to the female speaker, why do people put personality test results on a job application?
 - a) To comply with a standard industry requirement X
 - b) To ensure the application form is complete
 - c) To help them stand out from other applicants
 - d) To demonstrate their ability to follow complex instructions
2. According to the recording, what might an INTJ personality type be good at?
 - a) Working well with people
 - b) Handling customer complaints Teaching
 - c) Paying attention to detail X
 - d) Strategic planning for the future
3. Putting personality test results on an application can feel like a shortcut for communicating.
 - a) one's work style and problem-solving skills /
 - b) one's ability to finish tasks effectively
 - c) one's availability for weekend work
 - d) one's specific salary expectations

4. Adding personality test results might feel like you are...
- a) minimizing your weaknesses openly.
 - b) being transparent about yourself.
 - c) requesting specific job accommodation.
 - d) asking for help before starting.

Cloze Summary (6 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and fill in the blanks with NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS.

Frequently Asked Questions for Recent Graduates

1. Should I include my MBTI in my job applications?

In general, the answer is no.

It is true that understanding your personality type is effective for your own personal personality and gives guidelines for how you should interact with others.

However, refrain from putting personality-tests results on résumé and cover letters.

2. What if a company asks for my MBTI in the job advertisement?

Take chance and consider why they are asking. Does the company use the information for employee development or simply as a tool to screen applicants?

3. What should I do instead?

We recommend focusing on doing the following:

- 1. Showcase elements that employers value, for example your communicating skills
- 2. Provide extra info for your experiences e.g., internships, volunteer work.

6/10

Yenny Tsun Hing 24235164

Listening (10 marks)

Situation:

During your research on MBTI in job hunting, you came across a podcast on whether job seekers should include their MBTI on their résumé. Listen to the recording and answer the following questions.

You will hear TWO excerpts from the podcast. Each recording will be played ONCE only.

Multiple-choice Questions (4 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and answer the following questions:

1. According to the female speaker, why do people put personality test results on a job application?
a) To comply with a standard industry requirement
b) To ensure the application form is complete
☒ c) To help them stand out from other applicants
d) To demonstrate their ability to follow complex instructions
2. According to the recording, what might an INTJ personality type be good at?
a) Working well with people
b) Handling customer complaints
c) Paying attention to detail
☒ d) Strategic planning for the future
3. Putting personality test results on an application can feel like a shortcut for communicating:
☒ a) one's work style and problem-solving skills
b) one's ability to finish tasks effectively
c) one's availability for weekend work
d) one's specific salary expectations

4. Adding personality test results might feel like you are...
- a) minimizing your weaknesses openly.
 - b) being transparent about yourself.
 - c) requesting specific job accommodation.
 - d) asking for help before starting.

Cloze Summary (6 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and fill in the blanks with NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS.

Frequently Asked Questions for Recent Graduates

1. Should I include my MBTI in my job applications?

In general, the answer is no.

It is true that understanding your personality type is effective for your own personal growth and gives guidelines for how you should interact with others.

However, refrain from _____ putting personality tests results on résumé and cover letters.

2. What if a company asks for my MBTI in the job advertisement?

Take time and consider why they are asking. Does the company use the information for employee development or simply as a _____ to screen applicants?

3. What should I do instead?

We recommend focusing on doing the following:

1. Showcase elements that employers value, for example your soft and hard skills

2. Provide _____ for your experiences e.g., internships, volunteer work.

4/10

Lun Cheuk Lam
23229918.

Listening (10 marks)

Situation:

During your research on MBTI in job hunting, you came across a podcast on whether job seekers should include their MBTI on their résumé. Listen to the recording and answer the following questions.

You will hear TWO excerpts from the podcast. Each recording will be played ONCE only.

Multiple-choice Questions (4 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and answer the following questions:

1. According to the female speaker, why do people put personality test results on a job application?

- a) To comply with a standard industry requirement
- b) To ensure the application form is complete
- c) To help them stand out from other applicants ✓
- d) To demonstrate their ability to follow complex instructions

different

2. According to the recording, what might an INTJ personality type be good at?

- a) Working well with people ✗
- b) Handling customer complaints
- c) Paying attention to detail ✓
- d) Strategic planning for the future ✓

be good at?

gd idea?
str

3. Putting personality test results on an application can feel like a shortcut for communicating:

- a) one's work style and problem-solving skills
- b) one's ability to finish tasks effectively
- c) one's availability for weekend work
- d) one's specific salary expectations

4. Adding personality test results might feel like you are...

- a) minimizing your weaknesses openly.
- b) being transparent about yourself.
- c) requesting specific job accommodation.
- d) asking for help before starting.

X

logic.

Cloze Summary (6 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and fill in the blanks with NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS.

Frequently Asked Questions for Recent Graduates

1. Should I include my MBTI in my job applications?

growth...

In general, the answer is no.

It is true that understanding your personality type is effective for your own personal growth and gives guidelines for how you should interact with others.

However, refrain from _____ putting personality tests results on résumé and cover letters.

2. What if a company asks for my MBTI in the job advertisement?

Take deep consideration and consider why they are asking. Does the company use the information for employee development or simply as a mechanism to screen applicants?

~~to screen~~

3. What should I do instead?

We recommend focusing on doing the following:

1. Showcase elements that employers value, for example your hard - soft skills ~~hard - soft~~

2. Provide as for your experiences e.g., internships, volunteer work.

6/10

~~13~~

Listening (10 marks)

Situation:

During your research on MBTI in job hunting, you came across a podcast on whether job seekers should include their MBTI on their résumé. Listen to the recording and answer the following questions.

You will hear TWO excerpts from the podcast. Each recording will be played ONCE only.

Multiple-choice Questions (4 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and answer the following questions:

no

1. According to the female speaker, why do people put personality test results on a job application?
 - a) To comply with a standard industry requirement
 - b) To ensure the application form is complete
 - ☒ c) To help them stand out from other applicants
 - d) To demonstrate their ability to follow complex instructions
2. According to the recording, what might an INTJ personality type be good at?
 - a) Working well with people
 - b) Handling customer complaints
 - c) Paying attention to detail
 - ☒ d) Strategic planning for the future
3. Putting personality test results on an application can feel like a shortcut for communicating:
 - ☒ a) one's work style and problem-solving skills
 - b) one's ability to finish tasks effectively
 - c) one's availability for weekend work
 - d) one's specific salary expectations

4. Adding personality test results might feel like you are...

- a) minimizing your weaknesses openly.
- b) being transparent about yourself.
- c) requesting specific job accommodation.
- d) asking for help before starting.

Cloze Summary (6 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and fill in the blanks with NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS.

Frequently Asked Questions for Recent Graduates

1. Should I include my MBTI in my job applications?

In general, the answer is no.

It is true that understanding your personality type is effective for your own personal growth and gives guidelines for how you should interact with others.

However, refrain from really putting personality tests results on résumé and cover letters.

2. What if a company asks for my MBTI in the job advertisement?

Take cautions and consider why they are asking. Does the company use the information for employee development or simply as a filter to screen applicants?

3. What should I do instead?

We recommend focusing on doing the following:

1. Showcase elements that employers value, for example your

hard / soft skills

2. Provide concrete for your experiences e.g., internships, volunteer work.

5/10

Chan Hei Yui
22232400

Listening (10 marks)

Situation:

During your research on MBTI in job hunting, you came across a podcast on whether job seekers should include their MBTI on their résumé. Listen to the recording and answer the following questions.

You will hear TWO excerpts from the podcast. Each recording will be played ONCE only.

Multiple-choice Questions (4 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and answer the following questions:

1. According to the female speaker, why do people put personality test results on a job application?
 - a) To comply with a standard industry requirement
 - b) To ensure the application form is complete
 - ☒ c) To help them stand out from other applicants
 - d) To demonstrate their ability to follow complex instructions
2. According to the recording, what might an INTJ personality type be good at?
 - ☒ a) Working well with people
 - b) Handling customer complaints
 - c) Paying attention to detail
 - d) Strategic planning for the future
3. Putting personality test results on an application can feel like a shortcut for communicating:
 - ☒ a) one's work style and problem-solving skills
 - b) one's ability to finish tasks effectively
 - c) one's availability for weekend work
 - d) one's specific salary expectations

4. Adding personality test results might feel like you are...
- a) minimizing your weaknesses openly.
 - b) being transparent about yourself.
 - c) requesting specific job accommodation.
 - d) asking for help before starting.

Cloze Summary (6 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and fill in the blanks with NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS.

Frequently Asked Questions for Recent Graduates

1. Should I include my MBTI in my job applications?

In general, the answer is no.

It is true that understanding your personality type is effective for your own personal growth and gives guidelines for how you should interact with others.

However, refrain from _____ putting personality tests results on résumé and cover letters.

2. What if a company asks for my MBTI in the job advertisement?

Take caution and consider why they are asking. Does the company use the information for employee development or simply as a measure to screen applicants?

3. What should I do instead?

We recommend focusing on doing the following:

1. Showcase elements that employers value, for example your hard and source skills
2. Provide concise information for your experiences e.g., internships, volunteer work.

Name: Tairina Sabrina Torra

SID: 23201703

7/10

Listening (10 marks)

Situation:

During your research on MBTI in job hunting, you came across a podcast on whether job seekers should include their MBTI on their résumé. Listen to the recording and answer the following questions.

You will hear TWO excerpts from the podcast. Each recording will be played ONCE only.

Multiple-choice Questions (4 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and answer the following questions:

1. According to the female speaker, why do people put personality test results on a job application?
 - a) To comply with a standard industry requirement
 - b) To ensure the application form is complete
 - ☒ c) To help them stand out from other applicants
 - d) To demonstrate their ability to follow complex instructions
2. According to the recording, what might an INTJ personality type be good at?
 - a) Working well with people
 - b) Handling customer complaints
 - c) Paying attention to detail
 - ☒ d) Strategic planning for the future
3. Putting personality test results on an application can feel like a shortcut for communicating:
 - ☒ a) one's work style and problem-solving skills
 - b) one's ability to finish tasks effectively
 - c) one's availability for weekend work
 - d) one's specific salary expectations

4. Adding personality test results might feel like you are...
- a) minimizing your weaknesses openly.
 - ✓ b) being transparent about yourself.
 - c) requesting specific job accommodation.
 - d) asking for help before starting.

Cloze Summary (6 marks; 1 mark each)

Listen to the recording and fill in the blanks with NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS.

Frequently Asked Questions for Recent Graduates

1. Should I include my MBTI in my job applications?

In general, the answer is no.

It is true that understanding your personality type is effective for your own personal growth and gives guidelines for how you should interact with others.

However, refrain from _____ putting personality tests results on résumé and cover letters.

2. What if a company asks for my MBTI in the job advertisement?

Take into consideration and consider why they are asking. Does the company use the information for employee development or simply as a cruit filtering mechanism to screen applicants?

3. What should I do instead?

We recommend focusing on doing the following:

1. Showcase elements that employers value, for example your hard and soft skills
2. Provide concrete evidence for your experiences e.g., internships, volunteer work.